

Function statements are created when the class (a component) is initialized

Inline functions are created in execution times.

For React it means, every time render method is called

Function statements are created when the class (a component) is initialized

Inline functions are created in execution times.
For React it means, every time render method is called

What should I use?